

I follow the line of my flight path and mark the point where the city I am heading toward becomes more real than the city I have left.

